National Library Week

April 11- 16, 2011

National Library Week is a time set aside every year to recognize the importance of libraries in our lives. Academic and public libraries make a contribution to the lives of Americans, and this is the time to celebrate that contribution. We invite you to stop by the library for a piece of candy during the week—our treat to you! On Monday, April 11, the popular sidewalk chalk returns for “I Love My Library!” Come to the sidewalk outside the library and tell us about your favorite book or library.

If you don't have a library card yet, be sure to get one soon. You need it to access journal articles and databases, read ESC electronic books, and to request books from other libraries. If you are going to print from the computers in the library or Academic Success Center, or use the photocopier, you also need an ESC print card, which you can purchase in the library. Be sure to bring a one dollar bill ($1), because the print card dispenser requires it. Printing on campus is 5¢ a page, 25¢ for color.

See you soon at the Charlotte Campus library!
