Leading Change in Tough Times Protect People, Productivity, and Profits

If your organization is experiencing dramatic change, the time may be right for intervention. The Leading Change workshop specializes in helping organizations train their executives and managers in a way that builds loyalty and maintains productivity during tough times. Productivity can take a huge dip when trust, fear, and uncertainty take over in organizations. Whether you have 30 employees or 3000, the dynamics of change are predictable and can be dealt with effectively. This one-day workshop will prepare you with invaluable information.

"This is a time for tough love therapy not sensitivity training"...Price Pritchett, world renowned transition management consultant, author.

- Understand what to expect: The Organizational and Individual dynamics of change are predictable
- Learn what's at risk: How change affects productivity and people
- Get your employees to buy in and stop resisting change
- Develop the 4 core competencies necessary to deal with transition
