Outpatient Coding Certificate Program

The Outpatient Medical Coding Certificate Program at Edison State College, Charlotte will prepare students to join a profitable and forever advancing field in Healthcare. A Medical Coder's job description ranges from Outpatient Coder to Medical Records Office Manager. This program is designed to provide the student with the practical skills and knowledge needed to begin their coding career. Students must take Medical Terminology for Coding, Anatomy and Physiology for Coding and Outpatient Coding. For a $35.00 fee, those with working experience in the health care field may opt to test out of Medical Terminology and Anatomy and Physiology for Coding. Students have the option of registering for each individual class. Two of the courses will be taught by Melinda Smaller, who holds an Associate's Degree in Health Information and is a certified credentialed coder with over 10 years of experience in the field as a medical coder, instructor and a tutor. This program meets the 80 hours of instruction required to take the CPC Certification Exam.
